

Insurance

We serve the insurance industry through our insurance litigation practice, which includes representing insurance companies, third-party administrators, and insureds in state as well as federal courts. Our extensive experience involving a variety of commercial and personal lines policies includes defending claims involving many substantive areas of law, including bad faith, business and real estate, officers and directors, product liability, life insurance, reinsurance, employment, and construction. As counsel for insurance companies and self-insured businesses, we also analyze insurance coverage issues and defend disputes arising from personal torts such as defamation and bodily injury. We recognize that many litigated disputes involve insurance and are proud of our long-standing relationship with industry leaders.